Meet The Nocturnals

In the critically acclaimed early reader and middle grade series, we meet three unlikely friends—Dawn, a serious fox; Tobin, a sweet pangolin; and Bismark, a pint-sized sugar glider. The fun-filled adventures feature captivating plot twists and plenty of humor. As The Nocturnals solve the unpredictable mysteries of the night, they meet new friends and learn life skills along the way. Connect readers to the animal science in the series with the nonfiction companion books.

The Nocturnals Nonfiction

Inside You'll Find

Early Reader & Middle Grade Includes:

Four-Color Animal Photos & Character Illustrations

Jam-Packed with Fun Facts about Unusual Animals

Fiction Narrative Supports Learning

Nonfiction Features: Table of Contents, STEM-Word Glossary & Animal Glossary

Sensational Senses
Nocturnal animals have adapted to hear, see, smell, and feel their way through the dark. Their sensational senses help them find food, too.
A red fox has fantastic hearing. Its pointed ears stick up and easily catch sound. The ears also move separately from each other. They allow the fox to hear from the side as well as from behind.
Fun fact: Red foxes are not always red. They can be many colors, even purple, gray, or black.

Meet the Scaly Pangolin!
Pangolins live in Asia and Africa. They make their homes in forests, grasslands, and shrubby bushlands—pretty much anywhere with lots of ants to eat.
Pangolins are one of the most endangered mammals in the world. They are hunted for their scales, which are used as ingredients in traditional medicines. Poachers aren't the only danger to pangolins. As land is cleared for farming or building, especially in parts of Asia, pangolins lose the trees, burrows, and insect nests they depend on. In fact, so many pangolins are under threat that an eighth species are at risk of extinction and are protected by law.

Chapter 3: GLIDE SUGAR GLIDER!
Sugar gliders are about the size of a human hand. Like possums and kangaroos, they're marsupials, which means they're born in pouches to carry their babies. They spend their whole lives in the trees. In fact, their furry feet cannot leave each the ground.
FUN FACT: Sugar gliders use their remarkable tails to carry them to their nests.

Meet the Fuzzy Possum!
Do you see the reddish stain on the common brushtail possum's chest? The possum didn't spill ketchup on itself. That stain is made by its scent gland. To mark its territory, the male possum rubs its scent on trees in its home area. Then other possums know they're not welcome to move in.

Animal Glossary
Bat
Bats are mammals that get their name from the way they fly. They have wings that are made of skin stretched over their arms. Bats are the only mammals that can fly. They are also the only mammals that can see in the dark. Bats are very important to our world. They eat insects that are harmful to crops and help to pollinate plants. Bats are also very important to our health. They eat mosquitoes and other insects that can spread disease.
Chameleon
Chameleons are colorful lizards that can change their color to match their surroundings. They are found in Africa, Asia, and South America. Chameleons are very good at camouflage. They can change their color to match the color of the leaves, branches, and other things in their environment. This helps them to hide from their predators and to catch their prey. Chameleons are also very good at climbing. They have long, sticky tongues that they use to catch their prey.
Kangaroo
Kangaroos are one of the largest marsupials in the world. They are found in Australia. Kangaroos are very good at jumping. They can jump up to 20 feet in the air. Kangaroos are also very good at swimming. They can swim for long periods of time. Kangaroos are very important to the Australian economy. They are raised for their meat and their skins.
Pangolin
Pangolins are mammals that are covered in scales. They are found in Asia and Africa. Pangolins are very good at camouflage. They can change their color to match the color of the ground and the trees. Pangolins are also very good at climbing. They have long, sticky tongues that they use to catch their prey. Pangolins are very important to the ecosystem. They eat insects that are harmful to crops and help to pollinate plants.

Middle Grade Nonfiction Includes:

Nocturnal Feature Icon Key for Every Animal

Animal Index

NOCTURNAL ANIMAL FEATURES
Nocturnal animals have special features that help them survive in the dark. A star icon means the animal has night vision. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of smell. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of hearing. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of touch. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of taste. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of smell. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of hearing. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of touch. A star icon means the animal has a special sense of taste.

Chapter 2: SCALY PANGOLINS
While pangolins might look like scaly lizards, these cute creatures are actually mammals. There are eight species of pangolins that live in either Africa or Asia. Though each species is different, all of them are known for a signature feature: their special scales.
FUN FACT: Pangolin scales are made out of keratin—the same stuff as human fingernails!

EXPECT HIDE!
Pangolins are very good at hiding. They can change their color to match the color of the ground and the trees. This helps them to hide from their predators and to catch their prey.

INTO THE NIGHT
Pangolins are very good at climbing. They have long, sticky tongues that they use to catch their prey. They are also very good at swimming. They can swim for long periods of time.

ENDANGERED
Pangolins are very important to the ecosystem. They eat insects that are harmful to crops and help to pollinate plants. They are also very good at climbing. They have long, sticky tongues that they use to catch their prey. They are also very good at swimming. They can swim for long periods of time.

Night Notes
As you read, find the Night Notes to learn even more about an animal's special nocturnal features.

ENORMOUS EGG!
The ostrich is the largest bird in the world. It has a very long neck and long legs. It is very good at running. It can run up to 45 miles per hour. It is also very good at swimming. It can swim for long periods of time.

Night Notes
Like owls, the nocturnal bear can't see on its own. It has to get around at night. Instead, it uses its sharp hearing and sense of smell to find its way through the dark landscape. In fact, a bear is the only land animal that has nostrils on the top of its head!

PIPPA PARK®

Over 70,000 Copies Sold of the Bestselling Asian American Series

Meet Pippa Park

Meet Korean American Pippa Park in this relatable coming-of-age middle school series about friendship, peer-pressure, identity, and family. With courage and determination, Pippa must face middle school drama—and her own mistakes—while staying true to her real self.

Perfect for children ages 9–12.

Books include Bonus Author Q&A, Book Club Questions, and Glossary of Korean Words.

Meet Erin Yun

ERIN YUN grew up in Frisco, Texas. She received her BA in English from New York University and received her Masters in Creative Writing at Cambridge. She developed the Pippa Park Author Program, an interactive writing workshop, which she has conducted in person and virtually at schools, libraries, and bookstores. Yes, she used to play basketball as a middlegrader!

Endorsements

Featured in Linda Sue Park's KiBooka.com middle grade list of Kids' Books by Korean Americans

Featured in Book Riot's list of "13 Fantastic Books About East Asian American Kids"

"An empowering celebration of identity, friendship, and embracing one's roots...Yun writes of Korean-American family life with heart-warming, authentic detail."

—Publishers Weekly

"Solid, classic middle-school drama fare that benefits from the interesting ways Pippa's family background is developed. An engaging variation on a familiar theme."

—Kirkus Reviews

"Pippa is a magnetic heroine, funny and good-hearted... A nice balancing act between sports action, middle-school drama, and the struggles of an underprivileged immigrant family that will appeal to a wide audience."

—Booklist

"This charming and fast-paced middle-grade novel highlights family, friendship, and identity."

—Common Sense Media

"This warm-hearted, feel-good series continues to realistically explore one Korean American girl's middle school experience in a relatable way."

—School Library Journal

★ "A highly engaging and relevant title for schools that takes up issues of social class, ethnic identity, and the venture of staying true to oneself. Highly Recommended."

—School Library Connection (starred title)

"An exciting middle grade novel about middle school struggles and feeling out of place."

—Foreword Reviews

Pippa Park Raises Her Game #1

Life is full of great expectations for Korean American Pippa Park. It seems like everyone, from her family to the other kids at school, has a plan for how her life should look. When Pippa gets a mysterious basketball scholarship to Lakeview Private, she jumps at the chance to reinvent herself.

Pippa juggles old and new friends, a crush, and the pressure to get A's and score points while keeping her past and family's laundromat a secret from her elite new classmates. Pippa's carefully built persona is threatened when she begins to receive hateful, anonymous messages via social media. As things spiral out of control, Pippa wonders if she can keep it together or if she should even try.

Pippa Park Crush at First Sight #2

Pippa Park picks up right where she left off . . . trying to balance basketball, school, friends, working at the struggling family laundromat, and fitting in. Eliot, her math tutor—and the cutest boy at school—is finally paying attention to her. And Marvel—her childhood friend—is making her required volunteering much more interesting. But things with the Royals, her new friends and teammates who rule the school, still feel a bit rocky. Especially because Caroline, a head Royal, would like nothing more than to see Pippa fail.

So when Pippa is faced with hosting the annual Christmas Eve party that could make or break her social life, how can she say no? Will Pippa make enough money to cover the costs while juggling crushes and everything else? With courage and determination, Pippa sets out to host the party, find the perfect dress, pick the right boy, and stay true to her real self.
